

This is a short catalogue of organizations with which I became familiar in my eight years of Christian newspaper publishing and editing in Ottawa. Some actually have an Ottawa base; others, periodic contact or activity in the capital. They are categorized according to particular spheres of interest or activity.

Think Tanks

Canadian Commitment Research Institute
Centre for Cultural Renewal
Cardus (formerly Work Research Foundation)
Navigating the Faith/Political Interface (Manning Centre)

In addition, there are other bodies whose objectives might not fit completely within those of evangelical/orthodox/charismatic/reformed interests, but would bring some perspectives to bear that would be of interest.

They would include:

- Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops
- Canadian Council of Churches
- Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints
- Community of Christ (formerly Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints)
- Initiatives of Change (formerly Moral Rearmament)
- Metropolitan Community Churches

And, of course, there are the denominations represented by the several hundred Protestant and Catholic churches in the Ottawa area, working in English, French and about 30 other languages.

Increasingly, as well, there are inter-faith organizations and other faith groups that have similar structures serving their groups, many of them growing because of recent immigration patterns.

For example:

- Aga Khan Foundation
- Parliamentary Inter-Faith Friendship Committee
